TO KNOW

what to do in an emergency is always of value, and especially so if the knowledge is combined with the will to put it into effect. If there is one emergency more than another which demands that Knowledge and Action should join their forces is is that of a disordered sligestion. When this condition arises—and it does with many peaple rather frequently—it is well to know that BEECHAM'S PILLS are admittedly a first-class remedy, and it is better still to have them ready to take without delay. In cases of stomach trouble delay is, sometimes, fraught with mischief; there is the possibility of serious developments always to be kept in mind. The action of Beecham's Pills

IS TO cleanse the atomach, liver and bowels from waste accamulations, to impart tone to those organs and to enable them to per-form their functions with efficiency. Hence this medicine brings about a rapid improvement in the general braith. Those

Description of the control of

THE FLOUR MILLING ORDER.

It is present the probable effect of the Board of Trade regulations as to milling, and the proposed new brown loaf, replied that it was a big question. For one thing, he said, the result would be to make feeding stuffs for animals scarcer and dearer than they were ever before, since that part of the grain which hitherto had been used for the feeding of animals would, under the new Order, go to the feeding of human beings. It had been stated, he said, that the "straight way" flour would contain properties more nourishing and wholesome than the white flour which the people of these countries were accustomed to use. That was merely a matter of opinion. It was a question whether the new kind of bread would be as digestible as the old. Only experience could tell, but the experience of the last thirty years showed that the white flour which the people had been using possessed excellent nutritive properties. It was possible that the new kind of flour would not be very much darker than that which was used place among writers on European politics hat the death of Francis Joseph, third year; and there is little reason to believe that the prophecy holds good in the new conditions, and that his death will precipitate the dissolution of his Empire. It will evoke in the Allied countries—except, perhaps, in Italy, where his name was associated with the oppression of Italia Irredenta—no sentiment save that of pity. No European Monarch has had a longer reign, and none a reign so tragic. Fate heaped sorrows, personal and public, upon his head with a lavishness that made him an outstanding figure of dolour even against the sinister background of the unhappy annals of the House of Hapsburg. He won the deep attachment of his people to his person by his unfailing efforts to advance their material welfare and to promote the spirit of constitutionalism; and he has died when their destiny in the supreme criais of their history hangs still in the balance. and Police (Ireland) Bill, Mr. Dillow sought a statement from the Chief Secretary as to the recent trouble in the Dublin Metropolitan Police. He maintained that the action of the men who had been dismissed, some of them with fine records in the force, had merely been foolish, but nothing more, and begged that a lenient view should be taken of their conduct, and that they should be reinstated.

Mr. Duke said that the present condition of the D.M.P. was satisfactory, and promised to remain so. The House was, I think, a little surprised to hear, in view of the statements that have appeared in the Press, that no members of the force had joined the A.O.H. But there had been deliberate and continued disobedience of orders, and, so far as the five ringleaders were concerned, no hope of their reinstatement could be held out, the reinstatement of the reinstate the result of the them the boundaries in the following extracts:

After the Bill had been read a third time the Chief Secretary, following a procedure seldom witnessed in the Commons, moved that its title should be amended by the addition of the words "and for other

The Registration of Business Names Bill, a measure running to some 21 clauses and a schedule, was taken through Committee in a very harmonious spirit indeed, and so amenable did the Government prove upon the first clause that Mr. Joynson-Hicks, speaking on behalf of Sir Edward Carson, expressed the gratification of the Unionist War Committee at the acceptance of a large proportion of its amendments. Mr. Pretyman and Sir George Cave were the Ministers in charge of the Bill.

A mixed Unionist and Liberal deputation will wait on the Secretary for the Colonies (Mr. Bonar Law) to-morrow in favour of the employment, as far as possible, of coloured labour behind the fighting line in France and in useful work at home, such as may be found at the docks. DEATH OF THE

SKETCH OF HIS CAREER.

Home policy now claimed his care. He sought to restore constitutionalism in Austria. Towards the close of 1860 an Imperial decree re-established Dicts in the several States of the Empire. The Hungarians, however, viewed the Empire. The Hungarians, however, viewed the concessions are a haif measure, and demanded the complete revival of the old national institutions. Meanwhile the Schleswig-Holstein controversy was revived. Bismarck, in 1864, persuaded Austria to join hands with Prausia and wrest the Duchies from Denmark. The victors tought about the spoils. "The Six Weeks" War." had issue in Sadowa. Austria had to agree to the formation of the North German Confederation under the leadership of Prussia, and, to save his Empire and his capital, transis Joseph ceded Venetia to Napoleon III., agreeing that it should revert to Italy with peace. The Emperor, thus humbled, sought once more to strengthen his interrepted task of constitutional reform, substituted liberal for reactionary policy, and so conciliated Hungary, that he and his consort were crowned King and Queen in June of 1876.

STRONG DUTCH COMMENT.

The unexpected death of the Emperor Francis Joseph has caused a profound impression a throughout Italy, where the Emperor was considered the incarnation of the enmity existing between Italy and Austria, and where it was a felt that he alone held together the divisions of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. The general view is that his death will probably have little effect on the military campaign, which is falling more and more under German direction, but it is thought to be doubtful whether the enthusiasm of the nation will survive it rules.

FRENCH OPINION. (REUTER'S TELEGRAM.) PARIS, WEDNESDAY.

The death of the Emperor of Austria occupies the chief place in the French Press to-day.

The Temps, in a leading article, says—
France and England, before the war, had accustomed themselves to see in the rule of the Emperor Francis Joseph a possible element of European equilibrium, but it was a mistake.

summary of the bill drawn up by the Irish Office and sent to the police in all districts of Ireland, and to the Chambers districts of Ireland, and to the Chambers of Commerce, so that the public might be made acquainted with its terms.

The bill was then reported to the House.
On the National Insurance (Temporary Employment in Agriculture) Bill, Mr. Nugent protested against the provisions of the measure as they affect Ireland, and moved that it be read a second time that day these measures.

day three months.

Mr. Hazleton seconded the rejection, contending that there was no justification for the application of the bill to Ireland.

Mr. Coote thought, on the contrary, that the bill would be of great benefit to Ireland.

Mr. Charles Roberts said that the measure had only very limited application to Ireland. If the Irish members desired that it should not apply to Ireland he was willing to agree.

The bill was read a second time.

The Lond Chancellor took his seat upon the Woolsack at a quarter past four o'clock.

ACQUISITION OF LAND BILL. The House went into Committee on the Defence of the Realm (Acquisition of Land) Bill.

Several amendments were discussed, and Committee stage was adjourned until to-morrow.

The Trading with the Enemy and Export of Prohibited Goods Bill passed through Committee.

The House adjourned at 7.30.

HOUSE OF COMMONS-Wednesday. THE CHANNEL FIGHT. Dr. MACNAMARA informed Commander Bel-lairs that courts of inquiry had been held into the loss of H.M.S. Flirt and H.M.S. Nubian, and the reports would be considered by the Admiralty.

Commander BELLAIRS gave notice that he reply at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. J. F. HOPE informed Mr. Malcolm that the Government had been informed that the British graves at Gallipoli had been photographed by the Vatican, and that the Foreign Office would be furnished with reproductions. He need hardly say that they appreciated the solicitude of the Pope in this matter. NO SECRET SESSION. Mr. ASQUITH, replying to several questions, announced that there was no sufficient evidence of a general desire in the House for a secret session. If he could be satisfied that there was such a general desire, both as to a secret session and of the topics to be discussed, the Government would certainly reconsider their decision. ment would certainly reconsider their decision. REGISTRATION OF BUSINESS NAMES. The House went into Committee on the Registration of Business Names Bill.
On Clause 1, which requires firms or individuals carrying on business in the United Kingdom under a business name which does not consist of the true surnames of all the partners, to be registered in the manner directed by the Act, Act, Mr. BUTCHER moved an amendment extending the obligation to register to firms which have changed their names before or after the passing of the Act, except in the case of a woman, in consequence of marriage.

Mr. PRETYMAN accepted the amendment, which he said was in accord with the spirit of the bill. which he said was in accord with the bill.

The amendment was agreed to.

On the question that Clause 1, as amended, stand part of the bill,

Mr. JOYNSON HICKS, on behalf of Sir Edward Carson and the Committee over which he presided, expressed his deep sense of gratitude to the Government for having incorporated in the bill practically the whole of the amendments suggested by the Committee. They had made a very satisfactory bill out of a very inferior bill. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. BUTCHER also thanked the Government for having so promptly presented the bill to the Committee in such a satisfactory condition.

called in to constitute the tribunal to try the particular man, without affording him an opportunity of appealing or putting forward arguments in bis own defence. The bill was vague, and the Irish people had very little confidence in the way in which the Commission would administer it when it become an Act. It cut into the foundation of the Insurance Act when, for the first time, it admitted that the people to be employed came to be exempt from insurance. He moved that the bill be postponed for three months.

Mr. HAZLETON seconded the amendment, and protested against the way in which the Parliamentary business was being conducted by some Under Secretaries, who could not even find the time to answer Parliamentary operators are considered by some Under Secretaries, who could not even find the time to answer Parliamentary operators are considered by some Under Secretaries, who could not even find the time to answer Parliamentary operators are considered by some Under Secretaries, who could not even find the time to answer Parliamentary operators are considered by some Under Secretaries, who could not even find the time to answer Parliamentary operators are considered by some Under Secretaries.

WILL you knit this ball of wool into any of the comforts required by our gallant troops? Of course you will, and the Mittens, Mufflers, Helmets, Gloves, Cardigans, Socks, when made, will, of course, be washed with LUX, for that unique preparation prevents loosely woven and knitted fabrics from matting together and shrinking in the wash. It is a labour of love to work for our brave soldiers, and the results of your loving labour must not be spoiled in the wash. LUX is pure essence of soap, in flakes. Each flake is delicate and transparently pure. Every flake saves you labour and preserves the clothes.

ness premises free from cabbage leaves, etc., which are thus a source of great danger to anyone walking upon them. Why are traders—butchers especially—allowed to sweep sawdust and other refuse on to the carriage way instead of using dustbins; and why are shop-fronts allowed to be washed down at any hour of the day? Farmers are allowed to send cartloads of cabbages to small shops, untrimmed and with stalks on, and these latter and superfluous leaves have to be removed by the dust-carts at the public expense, to which the farmers do not contribute anything.—Yours, etc..

Dublin, November 22nd, 1916. "KEEP TO THE RIGHT."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES SIR.—"X. Y. Z." wonders whether it is not the obvious danger of the present rule which makes so many people disregard it. I think not. On wide footpaths, such as those in Westmoreland street, the great majority keep to the right. In Grafton street the rule is disregarded, chiefly by women gazing into the shop windows. If these windowsgazers would always walk up the west side (towards St. Stephen's Green) and down the east side, I think that a great improvement would be observed.

To change the rule to "keep to the left" in Dublin only, while the present rule prevails in the rest of the United Kingdom, would make confusion worse confounded.—Yours, etc.,
